Compact

Indianapolis deliberately designed a convention campus around this important word. By placing a convention center, multi-purpose stadium, hotels, an urban mall and tons of restaurants and bars within a two-mile radius, everything becomes easier. Planners spend less on transportation, attendees stay together, and more networking leads to business getting done.

Connected

Over 4,700 hotel rooms connect into the Indiana Convention Center by climate-controlled skywalks, more than any city in the country. The center is also connected by an enclosed walkway to Lucas Oil Stadium. A three-block pedestrian walkway and event space connects the center to Conesco Fieldhouse. It's all connected to the city and cultural districts via the Indianapolis Cultural Trail. You get the idea.

Convenient

Location is everything. There is an undeniable convenience to meeting in the Midwest. Indianapolis is a day's drive from half the U.S. population. For those flying, our stunning airport is only 15 minutes from the heart of downtown. Once downtown, our walkable city makes work and fun easy.

Destination

The Indiana Convention Center and Lucas Oil Stadium are powerhouse destinations for the largest events in the country—including the 2012 Super Bowl. With its striking contemporary look and sense of openness, the ICC redefines the character of a trade show and meeting venue.

Now one of the largest convention centers in America, the Indiana Convention Center is connected by skywalks to more hotel rooms than any other city in the nation. Also linked to the center is a four-story urban shopping mall, surrounded by more than 200 restaurants and clubs, well-known sports venues, and a 10-block state park that features top museums, green space and a convenient canal walk. It's the reason Sports Illustrated's Peter King calls Indianapolis "the most walkable downtown in America."

With over $3 billion in convention industry investments, no other city in the nation can match Indianapolis' collection of upgrades and developments. We invite you to discover everything we have to offer for your next event experience.
